The spiritual, Christian commemoration of Christ's Nativity must differ from the profane, earthy celebrations of December 25. The commercial celebrations end with December 24. The Church begins on December 24 and keeps high festival for the twelve days following — reaching a second zenith on Epiphany. May every one of you, may every one of your families spend the happiest and the holiest two weeks of the year living the Incarnation in your lives and in your homes.

CHRISTMAS DAY

Through the Sacred Liturgy of Christmas, Holy Mother Church directs our minds and hearts to the triple birth of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. In homage to this triple birth, She grants every priest the tremendous privilege of saying three Masses on this day. In the first or midnight Mass, we with the Church witness again Christ's earthly or temporal birth as "Son of Mary" and we beg that we "may be found like unto him, who has united our human nature with the divine." In the second or daybreak Mass, we relive the spiritual birth of Christ in our souls through "The faith which illumines our minds," "in order that, justified by his grace, we may be heirs in the hope of life everlasting." In the third Mass, during the day, the Church emphasizes Christ's eternal birth as "Son of the Father."

Throughout the prayers of these three Masses—and every Catholic should if possible attend three Masses on Christmas Day — the Church dwells reverently and lovingly, as we should too, upon this three-fold birth of our Savior.

THERE ARE CATHOLICS BY BIRTH WHO ARE NOT PRACTICAL CATHOLICS

---

Most of us who are Catholics by the Providence of God, are Catholics because our parents had the true Faith. Possibly that is why some of us do not make the most of our religion, both for our own spiritual good and for the salvation of our neighbor. We have not had to work for our belief or suffer for it, and as a result do not appreciate it at its real value. I am afraid that some Catholics have never really taken time to prove their faith to themselves. They drift along, taking their beliefs for granted, hardly ever reading anything about them, and as a result, when a real test comes, they, too often, miserably fail to live up to their religion.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF NON-PRACTICAL CATHOLICS:—

1. The ignorant Catholic — he may be brilliant in other fields, but he has long since ceased to weigh and to reflect life's daily concerns in the light of faith. As a result he cannot answer the simplest questions about his religion — and he will hardly use his religion even for his own salvation or holiness . . .
2. The mechanical Catholic — he is fairly faithful to Friday abstinence and attendance at Mass, but his faith means little to him otherwise. He fulfills his obligations simply because Catholics are supposed to do certain things. His Catholic living therefore is of little or no inspirational value to others. He rarely says a prayer, seldom attends any evening devotion. From such as these arise the great scandals in politics, business, or social life, that bring discredit to the Church . . .
3. The protestant Catholic — who quite callously disagrees with the Church — usually on the subjects of marriage and the necessity of Catholic education. Very often such a Catholic is too ill-informed to know that he is disagreeing, not with the Church, but with God and His law, and that he is plunging himself into heresy . . .
4. The apologetic Catholic — who seems constantly fearful of what the world around thinks of him and his faith. He nods approval, or gives silent consent, to the most outrageous statements about his religion. Sometimes he startles even non-Catholics by his remarks: "Of course, the Church teaches that, but most Catholics don't agree with her." Such Catholics do no good to themselves, the Church or the world at large.
5. The critical Catholic — who is often tolerant of faults in his immediate circle of friends, or family, or himself . . . but he demands perfection in everybody else. Of course he talks, regardless of whether his audience is Catholic or non-Catholic, heedless of whether he misrepresents, calumniates or gives scandal.
6. The bad Catholic — who does the most harm. It is a tribute to the Catholic religion that most non-Catholics expect a virtuous life of every Catholic. If a Catholic fails, particularly if his sins be public, the world professes to be shocked — hypocritically maybe — but the fact remains that any Catholic can cause immense ruin to others by a sinful life . . .
7. The fallen-away Catholic — Actually it is impossible to destroy the seal of Catholicism on one's soul, for baptism leaves an indelible mark. But the mystery is why some "fallen-aways" hate the Church as much as they do. Possibly they are like the unfortunates in hell who, obstinate in evil, will go on for all eternity hating God, their companions and themselves. Such apostates frequently do a great amount of harm to the souls of others. They are miserable, and stand in critical need of prayers.

A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC? WHO IS A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC?

A practical Catholic is a person whose Faith means so much to him that it gets into his blood, becomes a part of his daily life and furnishes the power and inspiration for everything he does. To him the Catholic religion is not just a collection of half-memorized beliefs that he carries around in his pocket like a memorandum book all week and then comes up with it in Church for an hour or so on Sunday morning. He is so convinced of the truth and importance of his Faith that at all times and in all circumstances he thinks as a Catholic, speaks as a Catholic and acts as a Catholic. Such a fellow is an inspiration to his fellowman and a credit to the Catholic Church.

He not only tells his sins but also seeks advice as to how he can do better. He seriously plans his confessions, and usually has a particular fault that he is trying to overcome or a particular virtue he wants to develop . . . and upon this he makes regular report to his confessor.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is loyal to his Country. A Catholic cannot be a good Catholic unless he tries to be a good citizen . . . he must regard true loyalty to his country as an obligation in conscience . . . he will vote honestly, pay his just taxes, and obey the laws of the land, unless such be immoral. In crisis or danger, he is bound to defend the common good from invasion or oppression, even to the point of taking part in war . . . If he be a public official, he must scrupulously observe his oath to perform his duty exactly, with prejudice to none and benefit to all.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in good manners. He will always be a gentleman. Rudeness and boorishness are products of ignorance, bad will, selfishness or prejudice and are entirely out of place in a good Catholic. A practical Catholic may not always be the acme of polish and congeniality, but it will be more from a defect of temperament than any conscious failing . . . he will have too great a sense of his own weakness and deficiency and too real an appreciation of the worth and dignity of every human soul, ever to look down upon or deliberately injure a fellow-creature.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in his amusements. Because his Faith teaches him that a proper amount of recreation is necessary and good, he will enjoy to the full a game or vacation or company of friends . . . he will be careful that his recreations will be in accord with Christian ideals and propriety and that they do not give the slightest excuse for scandal . . . he will cautiously screen his permanent friends, to make certain that nothing in these associations ever ruin his friendship with Christ.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in the knowledge of Faith. A Catholic who does not understand his religion well, will not be a good Catholic . . . a practical Catholic therefore will read good literature, will be most attentive to sermons . . . he will strive to understand his faith so well that he can answer the questions and doubts of his non-Catholic friends not only exactly but in a way that appeals to both their minds and their hearts.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in his speech. Most people judge a person and his family and often his religion by his speech . . . some Catholics make a very bad impression by the vile and irreverent venom that spews from their lips . . . Malicious gossip, blasphemy, cursing, the abuse of the Holy Name, the sordid stories and expressions that smack of the barnyard should never be heard from the mouth of a practical Catholic . . . such unbecoming talk is usually a cloak that hides a weak and cowardly nature. A good Catholic will always speak with reverence and respect of his God, his Church, his bishops and priests, and of his neighbors.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in penance. He realizes his religion is not always easy . . . it demands sacrifices and struggles . . . but he also knows that all can be overcome if he conditions himself by a moderate amount of penance . . . and the astonishing thing is that when good Catholics practice penance, they feel happier for it.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in his purity. One of the "Lost virtues" of this age is purity . . . many in this world try to justify sexual violations as necessities of nature or needed experience. But the practical Catholic is convinced that no vice is more dangerous to his eternal salvation than impurity. He also knows he cannot preserve his purity of life unless he avoids danger, prays especially in temptation, and frequently approaches the sacraments of penance and Holy Communion. With these spiritual aids and his own vigilance, a Catholic can and does remain pure.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical in misfortune. Willing or not, all men must face the fact that they will suffer during life . . . pain and sorrow come and many succumb to despair. But the practical Catholic takes all in stride because he never permits himself to become too attached to the pleasures and riches and goods of this earth. For him there is a value in suffering . . . suffering can be meritorious in God's estimation . . . he remembers how Christ chose sufferings and how the saints followed . . . and he knows that in suffering he has available to him the unfailing aid of Jesus Himself.

HOW DOES A PRACTICAL CATHOLIC ACT? He is practical to death. The more a person is a stranger to God and the truths and practices of religion, the more uncertain and horrible for him is bound to be the fact of death. The fervent Catholic's life is directed and planned on the remembrance of the plain fact that some day he is going to die . . . but he does not despair or feel overly fearful or depressed, . . . he prays for a happy death . . . that he will be in the state of grace and strengthened by the last sacraments of the Church . . . then he knows God will help him to come home safely to heaven. And that is what he was made for.

Oto wykaz ofiar parafialnych szczegolowych. Nie patrzmy na tych którzy widocznie swego obowiazku nie spelniaja. Moze ich przyciska jaka bieda nam nieznaną. Wiec nie sadzmy ich — bo sad tylko do Boga samego nalezy. Ale patrzmy na tych którzy zawsze chwalebnie swoja naleznosc Kosciolowi oddaja. Dla tych okazmy uznanie:
"Tylko milosc Chrystusowa sprawia, ze nie ustajecie w wielkiej i bezprzykladnej ofiarnosci waszej . . . Tylko milosc chrzescijanska jest cierpliwa, laskawa jest, wszystko znosi, wszystko wytrzyma i nigdy nie ustaje . . . Jestecie tym promieniem slonca, który przebija geste chmury. Sloncem zas jest Chrystus. Oby On Wam, nierównanym apostołom milosierdzia, tysiaczkrotne bogoslawnienstwo raczył."
Such is the detailed report of individual offerings within the period of time specified. Let us not look upon those who clearly make no effort to give their dues. Perchance some want, or some ill — to us unknown — presses down upon them. We shall not judge them — for judgment belongs to God alone. Let us look rather upon those who are always so unstinting in their generosity to their Church. To them we give sincere thanks. May the good Lord bless them a thousand-fold.
